The Bankruptcy League Tables by volume involve only active U.S. bankruptcy cases of debtors with assets of $10 million or more. The rankings are based on the aggregation of those asset values. The table reflects the number of active cases fitting that criteria and may not characterize the total number of active cases. Firms and professionals only get one credit for each active case, not each active assignment. A (-) denotes less than $50 million. The Bankruptcy League Tables are broken up into eight groups, four involving firms and four involving professionals. Two tables are for law firms and lawyers, two are for investment banks and investment bankers, two are for crisis management firms and crisis management professionals and two are for non-investment banking firms and non-investment banking professionals. Law firms and lawyers are self-explanatory. Investment banks and investment bankers are separated into distinct tables to denote those firms that have the ability to raise capital for other companies, either through the issuance of equity or debt. By contrast, the tables for non-investment banks and non-investment bank professionals focus on firms that don't raise capital for others and tend to either have accounting, auditing or consulting firm lineage, or get the bulk of their business from being claims and noticing agents. Lastly, the tables for crisis management firms and crisis management professionals involve companies that provide interim management services for bankrupt corporations. These firms place interim chief executive, chief restructuring and chief operating officers, among others, at bankrupt companies for non-permanent assignments.
